Membership:

The California Crop Improvement Association recognized two types of membership:

Voting Membership: The Association is organized with members, but without capital stock. Any producer or conditioner, as defined in the CCIA bylaws, who has produced or conditioned seed within the last four crop years, shall be eligible for voting membership on approval by the Board or its designee of a membership application and signing of a membership agreement and the payment of such fees and dues as the Board may fix from time to time, if any.

Each voting member who is not a natural person shall designate in writing the individual who shall exercise the voting rights and be eligible to serve on the Board on behalf of the member. The designation shall be filed with the Secretary of the corporation and shall be maintained with the corporate records. Said designation may be changed by written notice to the Secretary of the corporation.

Voting members are allowed to vote for their district representative on the CCIA Board of Directors and to serve as district directors or directors at-large on the Board. Voting members are also entitled to vote on any future changes to the Bylaws. The membership year runs concurrently with the seed application year from October 1 to September 30 and membership is reaffirmed annually. There is no fee for membership.

Non-voting Membership: The Association may also admit Associate Members who shall be non-voting members of the corporation. Any person who is interested in the purpose of the Association shall be eligible for non-voting membership on approval by the Board or its designee of a membership application and the payment of such fees and dues as the Board may fix from time to time. Associate members shall not have any of the voting or other rights afforded voting members under the California Nonprofit Mutual Benefit Corporation Law.

I would like to be a voting member of the CCIA and I completed the membership application on the CCIA website.

I would like to be a non-voting member of the CCIA and I completed the membership application on the CCIA website.
